Bile is the natural purgative of the bowels, and if the Liver becomes torpid it is not separated from the blood, but carried through the veins to all parts of the system, and in trying to escape through the pores of the skin, causes it to turn yellow or a dirty brown color. The stomach becomes diseased and Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, and Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Headache, Biliousness, Jaundice, Chills, Malarial Fevers, Piles, Sick and Sour Stomach, and general debility follow. MER-RELL'S HEPATINE, the great vegetable discovery for torpidity, causes the Liver to throw off from one to two ounces of bile each time the bland research through it as long as throw off from one to two ounces of bile each time the blood passes through it, as long as there is an excess of bile; and the effect of even a few doses upon yellow complexion or a brown, dirty locking skin, will astonish all who try it—they being the first symptoms to disappear. of all diseases that arise from poison in the blood. Not one case of Scrofuls, Syphilis, White Swelling, Ulcerous Sores and Skin Disease in a thousand is treated without the use of Mercury in some form. The Domisican, Nicholas Domisic Young, who died in Washington on Wednesday, was born near the mouth of the Piscataway siver. Princo George's county, Md., on the 11th of June, 1793. His great grandfather was an Eoglish judge sent out here in that capacity, but on becoming a Roman Catholic was deposed. The ex judge bought a tract of land where now stands the better portion of the city of Washington, and many a time did the old monk, in his closing days, wonder whether he would be permitted to breathe his last in that city, where his father was born, and where, when he became a priest, he built the finest specimen of Gothic work in this country, the Church of St. Dominie, on the very spot where stood his great grandfather's barn. This was the first church built in Washington, and the old priest remembered it with pride. The domain fell to Notley Young, the grand-father of Father Young, and when General Washington came to lay out the city he resided in the elegant massion of Notley Young, which was the finest in that part of the country during the time of his stay there. The General induced Notley Young to give up his farm and the whole of south Washington, which once formed part of the Young farm. Gen. Washington, however, provided that the Young mansion should not be torn down till after the death of its occupant. It stood just in the middle of a street till after Notley Young's death. Nicholas Young, father of the dead priest, married one of the Fenwicks, who were of the Lord Baltimore colony, founders of Maryland. He removed to Prince George's county, Md., where his wife owned a farm of inheritance. This was right opposite Mount Vernon, the house of Washington, and frequently did Father Young recount how, when he was a boy, the whole family would gather in the green of a morning, and view the General through a spy glass as he paced up and down his veranda, with his hands behind his back and seemingly in a deep revery. Father Young used to say the General was in the habit of walking this way every morning. Father Young saw Wash. ington at a military parade when he was a child, and the old priest would tell the story, which he was often called on to do, something after this fashion :

"When I was about eight years old I remember there was to be a parade not far from our place. It was appounced that Gen. Washington would be there; but, bless you, that wasn't half the inducement to a lot of young shavers and rayself that we saw in the promise of a supply of town gingerbread. However, when we got there the General was there, and we boys were tremendously impressed by his big cocked hat. That was all the greatness we saw about him. He was a tall man, with massive shoulders and a face that looked kind, but made a follow feel you could not throw gravel in his boots, like we used to do those other high feathered chaps. I thought he was the greatest man I ever saw, but I didn't know why. All I knew was that he whipped the chap that whipped the British. I could recognize him this mement, though, he made such an impression on me.'

British, and everybody pointed him out as the

The Reception of the Viceregal Couple in Montreal. The Montreal correspondent of the Now York Herald in his account of the reception of the viceregal party in that city says :-"The horses attached to the viceregal landau became restive, reared and backed. The coachman was cool. But the opportunity was too good for Canadian enthusiasm to lose. The multitudes pressed forward, closing about the carriage. Hats were lifted and hands were thrust in which the Marquis grasped with a smile. Other hands unhitched the frightened horses, and next some hundreds of hands were put to an improvised rope and the landau went along whirling in real honest British fashion. The Princess was so pleased with this novel demonstration that she burst into a hearty laugh, in which the Marquis joined. The men and boys who drew the carriage had difficulty in getting it past Prince Edward's Block, where the multitude was so dense, and the windows, gables and roofs swarmed with people shouting and waving hats and handkerchiefs. To all these manifestations of loyalty the suite behind the viceregal carriage responded with some mischievous mock acknowledgments.

"Up Beaver hill the cortege proceeded wi h some difficulty, their excellencies being shower cd with bequets and little nosegays, on the way. Denser and still more dense grew the throng, so that the good humored efforts of Lieut. Gederal Smyth and his aids were overwhelmed for the moment by the greater good humor and importacity of the citizens bent on catching a gimes of the daughter of the Queen. These vied with each other to relieve the human team which drew the carriage on-ward. In the midst of the tumuit a pretry scene checkered it, the children of St. Andrew's church appearing on a platform and singing the national athem. Here the height was reached where the second instalment of troops assigned to welcome His excellency and Her Royal Highness was seen posted in the perspec tive. The Fifth fusiliers, a equadron of cavalry in motion, clearing the streets, and the Princes of Wales rifles, the garrison artillery, engineers and the S'xty fifth regiment in line made a long stretch of military display in front of the advancing procession. The Sixth regiment also was sent, and last of all the Victoria rifles. The Fitth, with bagpipes playing, instantly attract ed the attention of His Excellency, who, hav ing lifted his hat all along in acknowledgment of the various regimental salutes, bowed particu larly to the pibroch. Not less pleased was the STEAM CRACKER & CAKE BAKER, S larly to the pibroch. Not less pleased was the Priocess as these notes, well known to her and her royal mother, fell upon her cars. The tower of the Windsor Hotel was now visible, its windows crowded with guests and sightseers. Towards this the procession advanced, meetiog on the upper side an arch surmounted with everygreen and loyal mottoes, the ears of all present being stunned as they passed under it I by the booming of cannon to the right and left.
